

Essentially Amsterdam launches Amsterdam Job Radar, an AI job board for English speakers in Amsterdam

Free tool reads the careers pages of 98 Amsterdam employers every day and sums up each of 1,300+ open roles in one sentence

The screenshot shows the 'Essentially Amsterdam' website's 'Jobs' section. The header includes the site logo, a search bar, and navigation links: 'Amsterdam Life', 'What's On', 'Newsletter', 'Businesses', 'Jobs' (highlighted in red), 'Tools', 'News', and 'About'. The main heading is 'Jobs in Amsterdam', followed by a summary: '1367 open roles at 98 employers in and around Amsterdam, newest first. 33 new today. Each title opens the employer's own job page. Updated 27 October 2026, 06:00'. Below this is a search bar with the placeholder 'Job title, skill, company or area' and a dropdown for 'All categories (1367)'. Filter sections include 'Working hours' (Any hours), 'Workplace' (Any location), 'Level' (Any level), and 'Posted' (Any time). There are also checkboxes for 'New today', 'Ad in English' (checked), 'Salary shown', and 'Hide internships'. It shows '853 matching jobs' and a 'Clear filters' link. The job list starts with 'Operations Manager / Supply Manager' at 'Middle East' (marked 'New'), located in 'Amsterdam' (Hybrid), posted 'Yesterday'. The description is: 'Manage assigned hubs for Transferz's Supply team, working with local transfer suppliers and using data to improve performance, quality and pricing. Bring 2, 5 years of experience in operations or supply chain.' Below this is another job listing for 'FP&A Analyst' (marked 'New').

Amsterdam Job Radar on 27 October 2026: 1,367 open roles at 98 employers, 853 of them advertised in English.

AMSTERDAM, 27 October 2026 - Essentially Amsterdam, the English-language daily newsletter for people living in Amsterdam, has launched Amsterdam Job Radar, a free job board at essentiallyamsterdam.com/jobs/ that uses AI to make the city's job market readable for internationals.

Looking for work in Amsterdam usually means opening dozens of separate careers pages, many of them in Dutch, and reading long job ads to find out what a role actually involves. General job sites add recruiter reposts and ads that have already closed.

Amsterdam Job Radar takes a different approach. Every day it collects open roles directly from the careers pages of 98 employers in and around Amsterdam, including Booking.com, Adyen, Bitvavo and Microsoft. AI reads each ad and writes a one-sentence summary of what the job is, and the full text of every ad is indexed so that a search finds roles by the skills they ask for, not only by their title.

What Amsterdam Job Radar offers

- 1,367 open roles at 98 employers on launch day, 33 of them new that day
- 853 roles advertised in English, with a one-click "Ad in English" filter
- A one-sentence AI summary on every job
- Filters for category, working hours, workplace (remote, hybrid, on site), level and posting date, plus an option to hide internships
- Every listing links to the employer's own job page: no recruiters, no reposts and no sign-up
- A free daily jobs email with the newest roles

The board covers Amsterdam and its neighbouring municipalities, including Amstelveen, Diemen, Ouder-Amstel, Haarlemmermeer and Zaanstad, so employers around Schiphol and the city's edges are included.

Amsterdam Job Radar is free to use and works in any browser, on desktop and on mobile.

About Essentially Amsterdam

Essentially Amsterdam is an English-language daily newsletter and website for people living in Amsterdam. It covers what's on in the city each day, local news, a business directory and practical guides to living in the Netherlands. Website:

essentiallyamsterdam.com

Media contact

Essentially Amsterdam

Email: info@essentiallyamsterdam.com

Amsterdam Job Radar: essentialyamsterdam.com/jobs/

###